Teresa Ho Robeson is an (APALA) American Library Association's Youth Media Picture Book Award-winning author of fiction and nonfiction books on science, nature, and her own culture. Her work has received other awards (Orbis Pictus, ILA, Astra International Picture Book Competition), been on various lists (Bank Street Books, Mighty Girl, and more), and garnered starred reviews. Her book, CLOUDS IN SPACE, was even picked by Smithsonian Scholars as one of eleven Best Books of 2025!

Teresa has taught about writing nonfiction and graphic novels, as well as other aspects of an author career, at Boyds Mills, SCBWI, The Writing Barn, 12x12, Inked Voices, and more.

In addition to writing, Teresa is also an artist and a surface pattern designer. Living sustainably with her family on a mini-farm surrounded by State Forests, she bakes, knits, and helps preserve the foods they grow and forage. Their beautiful surroundings inform much of her art.

"Teresa Ho Robeson's session on Writing a Graphic Novel for the First Time is thorough and packed with great resources. Teresa teaches with high energy and contagious enthusiasm. After taking Teresa's session, I had all the information I needed to move from talking about writing a graphic novel "someday" to completing my first GN manuscript within the next few months." - Jamie Bills, kid lit author
